Initial Jazz Tea Of Year Held In Grill On Saturday

Hal Ayres' Orchestra Plays For Dancers In Redecorated Grill

A near capacity crowd of co-eds and their escorts attended the opening Jazz Tea in the McGill Union's redecorated Grill Room Friday afternoon. The music was supplied by Hal Ayres' five piece orchestra, with Art Miller singing the choruses and granting the requests sent in from the crowd. The Tea was one of the first of social functions planned for this year by the Union House Committee. Friday was the first time that the Jazz Tea had been held in the Grill.

Formerly the Jazz Teas were held in the Cafeteria, but this year, the Union House Committee has inaugurated table service in the Grill. The function will be a monthly one, with an orchestra in attendance, and the committee states that "every effort will be made to provide both an attractive orchestral menu, and good food." The dancers on Friday found that the orchestra supplied a programme of current dance tunes, with an occasional early number included in the medley.

Grill Room Redecorated

Those among the crowd who entered the new Grill Room for the first time this year found a transformation. The Grill, formerly used for meetings and luncheons has been redecorated, and is now operated as a restaurant catering to both men and women at moderate prices. The decorative scheme for the Tea Room included small lamps at each table, with a soft light replacing the ceiling lights. The Union House Committee has added colored curtains to the windows, and a complete repainting of the room has been effected.

Table service has replaced the former system of carrying trays adopted in the cafeteria, and Friday's visitors found their orders attended to while they danced. This policy will be adhered to all year, and the Union House Committee state that the renovated Grill Room is meant to fill a need for a restaurant in the Union where both co-eds and men may gather to satisfy the urge for tea around five, or coffee in the morning. An orchestra will be installed for daily use. The tables are arranged around the wall, so as to leave space for the dancers.

The crowd that came out to dance and munch toast at the first Jazz Tea all but filled the Gill Room. The co-eds were in evidence this year, being determined not to repeat last year's avoidance of the opening tea. This year the Union House Committee consists of Donald Smaill, President; Hollie McHugh, Vice-President; and John H. McDonald, Secretary.

Philosophical Club Meets Wednesday

Mr. Bloomfield Will Address Society on Subject of Happiness

The Philosophical Society will open this season with a general meeting on Wednesday, October 17th at 8 p.m. As in previous years the meeting will take place in Strathcona Hall.

The president of the Society, Morton Bloomfield, will read a paper to the meeting on the subject "Does the acquisition of knowledge lead to happier living?" It is expected that this address will attract many students who have been troubled by similar problems in their college life.

According to well-established tradition the paper will be followed by a discussion in which everyone is invited to express his opinion freely. This discussion occupies the greater part of the evening.

The aim of this club is to present current problems in philosophy to such students as are interested, and enable them to discuss these problems with a view to clarifying their thoughts on them. No solution of the problems is expected, for the majority of those submitted have defied solution up to the present.

Beginners are particularly requested to attend this initial meeting, and should not be deterred by a lack of familiarity with the subject.

The concluding meeting last year was devoted to the election of officers which are as follows:

Hon. Vice-president— Dr. W. Caldwell
Executive advisers Dr. C. W. Hendel
Dr. R. D. MacLennon
President Morton Bloomfield
Vice-president—1st, Beatrice Klineberg
2nd, Jack MacCabe
Secretary Mary Aikman
Treasurer Lawrence MacGregor

Students who have not already given their telephone numbers to the Registrar's Office must do so at once. This information is needed for the Students' Directory.

Newman Club To Hold Initial Open House Thursday

Older Members Will Welcome Incoming Students

THIS Thursday will mark the first Newman Club Open House. This function will take the form of an informal dance, to be held at 9.30 in the Congress Hall, Dorchester and St. Alexander Streets, adjoining St. Patrick's Church.

A new feature is being introduced this year in the manner of greeting the newcomers. The older members of the Newman Club will act as hosts to the incoming group. There will be no charge for admission or for the evening's activities.

The evening will commence at 9.30 with an informal dance. The orchestra which is to play has not yet been selected, but the committee state that some campus group will probably be selected to provide the music. It was also stated that there will be refreshments served later in the evening.

The committee state that an active season has been planned, and it is desired to see as many newcomers as possible turn out to this opening function of the Newman Club social season. The time is 9.30 Thursday evening.

Mock Parliament To Gather On Thursday

To Discuss Reciprocity Between Canada And United States

That "The salvation of Canada lies in the close economic cooperation with the United States" will be the contention upheld by the government in the forthcoming Mock Parliament. This highlight of the debating season at McGill will take place the coming Thursday evening in the Union ballroom. Eli C. Kelloway will fill the Prime Minister's post, while Allan Anderson will be the Leader of the Opposition. The clerk of the House will be Philip M. Vineberg.

In view of the fact that there will be no cabinet, as has been the case in previous years, the discussion will be carried on by members from the floor. The following are expected to participate in the discussion: Doug MacIntyre, Fred Piper, Chas. Wayland, Henry Schaffhausen, Don Black, Arthur Marshall, Bill Black, Ed. Gordon, Sol. Levites, and John Kerr.

Since debates and Mock Parliaments are held for the purpose of encouraging self-expression on the public platform, all newcomers are urged to turn out en masse. The executive of the Debating Union Society is especially anxious to see a larger attendance of co-ed participants at the forthcoming Mock Parliament than has been the case previously.

Engineers Will Hear Talk Tonight

The Junior Section of the Montreal Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada holds a meeting tonight at 8.15. This is to be held at 2050 Mansfield Street. The subject of the address by C. E. Frost is "The Technical Man Sells His Services." The general business of the section will precede the address.

H. J. Leitch, A.M.E.I.C., will preside in the chair and refreshments will be served. The Junior Section extends "a hearty welcome to all McGill students taking engineering courses and their friends" to be present at this evening's meeting.

Addresses have been planned for the fall session, and the topics are available from the Secretary, L. A. Duchastel, Jr. E.I.C. at 1440 St. Catherine Street West.

Graduates Society Officers Elected

The Graduate Students' Society of McGill University held a meeting on Friday in the Chemistry Building. This meeting was for the purpose of electing officers for the coming session of 1934-35. The following men were given office: Honorary President, Dean Eve; President, D. S. Calder; Vice-President, Miss Fowler; Secretary, E. P. Aikman; Treasurer, L. Gilman; Social Committee, Miss R. Williams, Miss F. Williams, R. M. Love; Athletic Committee, A. J. Corey, E. R. Pounder, G. H. Argue; Publicity, D. G. Hurst.

Opening Tea Dance Of Season Held By Pit Following Game

Norman Jennison's Orchestra Played For Dancers Saturday

NEW SYSTEM USED

Over Fifty Couples Attended Candlelight Function In Auditorium

Queen's may have won over McGill's Redmen, but the "spirit of McGill" was undaunted as evidenced by over fifty couples who found their way to the Pit for the after-game Tea Dance after Saturday's Rugby match. The music was supplied by Norman Jennison's orchestra, and the food was served by the Pit management. There will be a Tea Dance after both the Western Game and the Varsity Game.

The Pit changed the system adopted last year in handling the after-game crowd. The auditorium was used instead of the Pit proper, as formerly. The hall was lit by candles at each table and the McGill color scheme prevailed. The tables which were brought up from the Pit. Admission was obtained by the payment of 25 cents at the door, this replacing the "a la carte" method of last year. Checking facilities were afforded both upstairs and down.

Pit Serves Food

Tea and coffee were served in unrestricted amount, and the other eatables were obtained by the presentation of a check at the service door. In this way the tea did not interfere with the dancing. Tables were arranged along the wall, and the middle of the auditorium floor left free for the dancers.

The dancing commenced immediately after the conclusion of the game and continued until six o'clock. The management stated on Saturday that if future Tea Dances are as successful as was the last, they will be run also after the Hockey Games this winter.

Location Changed

It is planned to hold the future Tea Dances in the same manner as adopted Saturday. The Pit has been found to be too small, and the difficulty in serving over fifty couples has caused the committee to adopt the auditorium as the new place, and repeat the manner of serving the dancers. The "fixed charge" will be used rather than the "a la carte" system. An orchestra will provide the music to those who come down from the Stadium, or from the Forum.

In an interview Saturday, the management stated that the Tea Dance was considered a success, and the idea is well worth repeating." Judging from the fifty couples who turned out after the Queen's Game, the feature will become regular at the Pit.

Maccabeans Hear Dr. Norman Viner In Union Sunday

THERE was a large turnout for the first meeting of the Maccabean Circle this year, held in the Music Room of the Union yesterday afternoon. The meeting took the form of an informal reception, the object of which was to get the numerous members of the Circle better acquainted with one another. Dr. Norman Viner, of the Neurological Department, Honorary President, gave a short address. Among other things he told of the attitude adopted by Arts students of the time, who considered the course in Arts as more or less of large turnout signified great success for the Circle in the future. the Circle in the future.

Announcement was made that a meeting for the election of officers would be held on Wednesday at five o'clock in the Union. Later refreshments were served.

Players' Club

The first acting class will be held today at five o'clock in the Players' Club Room. All those in any way interested are urged to attend. This hour may be changed later to suit the needs of those taking the class.

Inter-Varsity Opens Season With Lunch

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will open this year's program with a luncheon at the McGill Union, Tuesday, the 16th., at one o'clock. Newcomers to McGill are especially invited to come and hear about the purpose and program of the Fellowship. A special reduction has been made in the price of the luncheon, to entice the economically minded. Those who plan to come are requested to leave their names with Bill Gentleman.

Tickets Now On Sale For Union House Informal

The Union House social activities are now well under way. The first Informal dance of the season will be held on Friday the 19th of October. According to the house committee this function promises to be a gala affair as it is the day of the Intercollegiate Track meet and it is expected that there will be a number of Toronto and Queen's Track men at this function.

The tickets are now on sale and may be obtained from Bert Yates at the Union Tuck Shop or from Bill Gentleman at the Arts Building. They are also on sale at the Engineering and Medical Buildings. Tickets will be one dollar per couple. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria, and the whole building itself will assume a holiday air, decorations and novelties being featured.

These Union House dances are held monthly, and while this is the first dance of the season, if it is as popular as those of last year, there will be no doubt at all as to its success. Usually a large crowd attends, as the affair has been taken up by the campus as a whole. The size of the ballroom, and the fact that the Union is given over entirely to the dance makes for the further enjoyment of the guests.

The Union House committee have spent considerable time in drawing up plans for these dances, and this year a few new features will be included to ensure the complete entertainment of the dancers, whose amusement is tantamount.

Literature Society Holds Election Of Officers Friday

Election Postponed From Last Year's Session

THE English Literary Society will hold a meeting on Friday at four o'clock for the purpose of electing the officers for the current season. The meeting will be held in Room 13 of the Arts Building. There will be registration of members conducted also.

In an interview last night, a member of the committee stated that it is important that all past and new members of the society be present at this meeting, as it is desired to draw up the plans for the season's activities, and this is impossible until the officers are elected. There may be a discussion upon some phase of English Literature, but it is thought that the registration and election will occupy the whole meeting.

It was further stated that the topics for the year's discussions will be issued shortly. The committee reported that the past season was an active one, and it is hoped to exceed it this year. The election of officers to be held Friday was postponed from last year.

Tudor Hall Recital Features A. Holder

Negro Spiritual Singer Delighed Audience On Saturday

SISTER AT PIANO

By I. N. D.

On Saturday afternoon an appreciative Tudor Hall audience was delighted by a pleasing recital given by Arthur Holder, negro tenor. He began rather unsurely with "Heav'n, Heav'n," and seemed to be worried more by the mechanics of singing than the natural expression. Very soon, though, he sang more easily and naturally, so that the third spiritual of the group, "I Want to Be Ready," was rendered in a delightful manner.

His next group of three spirituals were sung excellently. Whereas in the first group he sang correctly but emotionlessly, he now dropped his reticence and combined warm feeling with cold technique. "Steal Away," arranged by his accompanist, Hazel Holder, was the occasion for very beautiful tone and some fine shading especially in the upper register. "It's Me" was sung with fervent religious emotion, and for a short time one could see the negro—now his culture shoved aside—singing despairingly to his "Lawd" he believed in so firmly. While especially well he performed "Exhortation" by Cook, a homily by a negro preacher.

Addresses Medical Society

Dr. L. H. McKim will speak to the members of the Medical Undergraduates Society this evening, at eight o'clock in the main lecture room of the Medical Building. All medical undergraduates, especially freshmen are urged to attend.

Withdrawal From League Of Canada Bovey Shield Topic

Contestants Asked to Sign List in Arts Building

SPEECHES IN UNION

Event Will Start at Four O'Clock in Music Room

Freshmen turn out today for the Junior Debating League's public speaking classic, the Bovey Shield Contest. Scheduled for four o'clock in the Union Music Room, the Contest will get underway with probably more than a dozen speakers. All who have not yet signed the notice in the Arts corridor are, if they intend to participate in the event, asked to do so without delay, since this facilitates matters.

The subject on which the contestants must speak, either negatively or affirmatively, is "Resolved that Canada should withdraw immediately from the League of Nations." Speeches should be five minutes in length. The speakers will pick numbers, and in this order will deliver their addresses. Thus to fully appreciate the debates, and to judge for themselves of the value of each, should be in the Music Room by four o'clock at the latest.

Last year's president of the League will attend the meeting, as well as a previous president, Allan Anderson, this year's president, will be in the chair. There will be three judges, all members of the Debating Union. Colonel Bovey, the donor of the Shield, will unfortunately not be able to be present, since he will not be in town. Last season's winner of the Shield, Sydney Friedman, will be present in the capacity of vice-president of the League.

According to the executive, the speeches will be judged as much from delivery as from content. The Shield will be presented to the winner immediately after the judges have rendered their decision. As usual in the past, the name of the winner will be placed on the Shield.

The list in the Arts Building corridor will be taken down early in the afternoon. After that time any who intend to participate will have to report themselves before four o'clock at the Union. The Music Room is on the third floor. The leading men in the contest will be invited to turn out to the Mock Parliament, to be held Thursday, and participate.

Allan Monkhouse On Soviet Russia At Peoples Forum

RUSSIA'S veering toward a capitalistic system, but with the government, instead of private individuals, owning the natural resources, the means of production and of distribution and of distribution; the success of the Soviet in establishment of heavy industries and electrification of the country; its striking triumph in the field of social welfare work, and its miserable failure in establishing collectivized farming; these were the highlights of an address given at the People's Forum last night by Mr. Allan Monckhouse before an immense audience. The subject was "The Present Position of the U.S.S.R."

In view of the fact that Mr. Monckhouse was one of the central figures in the trial of five British Engineers for sabotage, with the international complications that followed, his talk aroused a more than ordinary interest.

When Lenin and his followers came to power they had no constructive ideas as to the method of running the country, because the revolution had come sooner and had been more successful than they had expected. The next few years were spent in combating the outside powers who were trying to while if one wants to get anything break them their grip on the country. In order to keep the country going the government introduced a system of private ownership; it divided the huge estates of the exiled noblemen among the peasants. This was a serious error; for when the government later decided to collectivize the farms, in order to make the peasants more communistically minded, it was faced with the most bitter opposition on their part. They began to grow only enough produce for themselves; when the government sent troops to enforce its wishes conflicts arose and it was necessary for the government to use drastic, even cruel methods. Thousands of the richer farmers, or Kulaks as they were called, were exiled to northern, bleak Siberia.

Another serious error made by the Soviet was its virtual destruction of private distribution before the co-operative government stores had been fully established. The result was that there was, and still is, a serious shortage in the most ordinary amenities of life. The rations which one can obtain in these stores are very limited,

Queen's Down Redmen In Last Quarter Assault

Barnabe Kicks Drop With Four Minutes To Go Wiping Out McGill's Two Point Lead — Final Score 5-4 — Degnan, Smith and Hornig Injured by Queen's Rough-house Tactics — Shaughnessy's Squad Fails To Take Advantage of Breaks

THE intercollegiate rugby race widened considerably as a result of the games played on Saturday, with Toronto and Queen's surging to the front, running neck and neck with two victories and no defeats each, and McGill and Western two lengths behind, deadlocked with a couple of losses apiece. The Gaels from Kingston nosed out Shag Shaughnessy's Redmen at Molson Stadium 5-4 in a pretty fair game of football, the outstanding features of which were numerous penalties, plenty of hard tackling and the persistent spirit and vigorous fight of the Tricolour forces, which kept pounding away, literally at the home talent until their break came, in the form of a penalty with but three minutes to play, Ed. Barnabe capitalizing it with a field-goal. While Messrs. Reeves and Shaughnessy were masterminding in Montreal, Varsity was mopping up the Little Memorial Stadium with the unfortunate University of Western Ontario squad, plastering the latter with a 34-1 defeat, and thereby taking the rail as prime favourites to defend the crown which they wrested from Queen's last year.

The fairest thing to say about the McGill defeat is, in the first place, that the Redmen definitely did not capitalize on their breaks and secondly that Queen's played in their wonted style. Namely hit 'em hard and penalties be dammed. The latter philosophy was responsible for injuries to three of the mainstays of the Red squad, Joe Smith, George Degnan and George Hornig. Debnan got his along the line early in the second quarter as he attempted to get up the field after a kick. The big blonde end was borne of the gridiron on a stretcher amidst a storm of applause from the student sections. The extent of his injuries is not known yet, but Dr. Tees hopes to have him in action next week against Western. "California Joe" was smeared on the first play in the second half as he attempted to get into the clear after receiving a kick from Johnny Munro. He ran into a swarm of Tricolour tacklers, and after he was brought down, burly Abe Zvonkin piled onto his right ankle, for which service he was dismissed from the game until it ended. Smith may be able to see action next week, but that too depends on what Dr. Tees has to say. Hornig was ganged along the line in the fourth quarter. His condition is also indeterminable at present. It was a bitter heart-breaking defeat for the Shaughnessy Shocktroops, and can easily mean curtains for the year, as far as titular honours go.

McGill started off at a whirlwind pace to take a commanding lead early in the first quarter. After a fumble by Zvonkin with inches to go for a first down, McGill gained possession of the ball and on the next play Smith passed to Charlie Letourneau, for a 40-yard gain. An exchange of kicks netted either team no gain whatsoever, but Smith ran the ball from the Queen's 30 to the 20, and then proceeded to drop a lovely placement over the crossbars after six minutes of play making the score 3-0 for the Redmen. The first Tricolour score of the game came soon after, as Queen's forced the ball up the field to put Munro in a position to try a drop kick, which went wide of the mark but counted for a point as Richert was grassed behind the line. There was no further scoring in the quarter, and the general trend of play was surprising in that the vaunted Red forward passing attack was being smothered by an obviously well-drilled defensive system,

Watching Queen's Brass Knuckle It--

GENERAL opinion this week-end was that it was a tough game to lose. The Tricolour B.W.&F. squad, however, undoubtedly had an edge on the Red footballers. Just what they had the edge in is not quite certain. Prominent Montreal sports experts were still arguing the matter at an advanced hour last night. However the records say Rugby.

THE game took a heavy toll upon the Redmen in injuries although reports from the arnica department are distinctly encouraging. Degnan is the most seriously hurt but he is expected to be back in uniform next week.

TACTICAL errors are largely responsible for the Red and White's defeat. Last week it was plays going wrong. These excuses are by no means alibis. They represent defects which will probably be remedied by the time the London gridiron is reached.

SMITH still remains McGill's best bet although the veteran Riddell did some excellent work Saturday. His forward flips were models of their species and the fault for their failure lies with the receivers. Johnny was also an exceptionally sure catcher.

McGILL ran back very few kicks for notable gains. The Queen's ends were right down every time which is more than can be said for those wearing the Red and White. All of which does not speak so well for the vaunted McGill line. Nevertheless, through the centre they were practically air-tight, although Zvonkin, before his unfortunate little contretemps with the authorities succeeded in piercing the lid on several occasions.

HORNIG, playing a position which seldom calls for the limelight, deserved said spot on several occasions. His tackling was exceptional even though his enthusiasm on one occasion did cause him to pull off the tackle of the afternoon (throwing his man for a colossal loss) some two minutes after the whistle had blown.

THE Red team's forward flips were by no means successful chiefly due to the efforts of the Queen's ball-hawks. More than once they lifted the oval right out of the arms of some chagrined Redman.

AND en passant, we recommend to the customers, as an example of football as she is played, the exhibitions of professional rugby with which the Montreal stadium occasionally regales its patrons. Yes, we're being funny.

Fairy Tales

WHEN we think of Fairy Tales our minds automatically carry us back to the days of our childhood — to the times when open-eyed we used to listen to the stories of Hans Andersen and Christian Grimm, with their invariable ending, "and they lived happily ever after." How many fairy tales there are today, and how few of them end with a "happily ever after" finish. A fairy tale peculiar to the American continent is the all pervading faith placed in a college education, the belief that it leads to inevitable success in life. What a fairy tale this is. Today there are thousands and thousands of American college graduates struggling along on very meagrely paid positions, and thousands of others walking the streets in search of any kind of jobs.

With the passing of every year, thousands and thousands more college graduates are poured out into the world, before even their immediate predecessors have been placed. There is an idea that an education at college is the panacea of all evils — that if only one can get through college everything else will take care of itself. To this end thousands and thousands of young Americans, urged on by fond parents, struggle through college only to meet with bitter disappointment.

There are too many college graduates turned out every year — in European countries, particularly in the British Isles there is a saner conception of college education — only a very small proportion of the young men and women there even try to attend college or university; consequently only those best fitted go. When they leave college they have comparatively little difficulty in being placed in positions, because people know that only the best go, and their reward is correspondingly great.

In America, not only in the United States, but also to a lesser degree in Canada, too many people are going to college. Degrees are so common that an ordinary degree, such as a B.A., or a B.Sc., carries no outstanding advantages with it; one must hold a higher degree to be preferred, an M.A., or an M.Sc. There are a number of the better and more influential universities both in Canada and the United States, which are beginning to see this, and they are raising the standards of their requirements to such a height, that the very fact of a person bearing a degree from one of them is a testimonial in itself to his or her abilities.

In the past, and even today, too many people are going to colleges without any definite idea or reason — they go because it is the thing to do. It is this class of person, along with those unsuited mentally for college, whether by reason of disposition or ability, who must be restrained from adulterating the true standard of university education.

The Union Grill

DURING the summer months the Union House Committee had the Union Grill Room redecorated. With the opening of the college season this room has been fitted with tables and lamps and is now open to the undergraduate body — both men and women — for coffee in the morning and tea in the afternoon.

The opening of this room is the passing of another milestone in the history of the Union. It is the first time a real invitation to the co-eds has been extended. They are now allowed to use the Grill as a rendez-vous on an equal footing with the men. It is interesting to speculate upon the outcome of this new move by the Union, naturally there will be the 'die hards' who object to the use of any part of the Union by women on general principles. There are the others who picture general decline in manliness and a good deal of time wasted in tea drinking. However, if the students plan to waste time they might well waste it in harmless tea drinking — there are many less profitable ways of passing the odd hour. Such time might well be spent within the college portals. But we ask 'Is tea drinking really a waste of time?' Do not the English religiously spend a daily half hour over the brewing pot; perhaps this habit is a good thing.

The fact remains the Grill Room has been renovated, tastefully decorated tables are provided and daintily served food may be had at very moderate prices. The floor has been polished and a radio installed; before long we hope tea dancing at the Union will become 'The Thing.'

An opening Jazz Tea was held last Friday which proved to be a great success and it is expected that more similar functions will be held. We have always felt that the Union had great possibilities. It is an old building and has been used for a number of years. When things or buildings become 'institutions' they are apt to fall into disuse and sad to relate this seemed to be happening at 690 Sherbrooke St., but apparently the old order changeth and new innovations are appearing. The days of apathy are fast growing dim in the past.

SAGA SHADOWS

Revival of the Short Story: Writers Ahoy!

THE ghosts of a not too-distant past rise in this column in answer to constant demands for the establishment of a literary department in the Daily. Through it, we will seek to give voice to the many promising authors and authoresses who frequent the campus. There has always been a steady undercurrent of literary production at McGill, a force which has been compelled to subside without comment. It will be the aim of Saga Shadows to present each week a short story or a play or any literary piece worth of reproduction, it being understood that the writer is a student at McGill. We guarantee that such will be of popular appeal, while still of literary value.

In short, all who have written, are writing, or hope to write, all these who write and hope sometime to be read will be served by Saga Shadows. Leave your contributions at the Union Tuck Shop, addressed Short Story Editor. The length of each should be approximately one thousand words or less.

Note: With each story will be included a brief outline of its type:—

Short story fashions, like clothes, change with the changing years and the attitude of people. We have included in the column today an example of the so-called short story as found under that name in the average magazines of the day. It is necessarily not the best nor yet the worst of the various forms. It expresses, in short, an idea illuminated by a surprise ending. Without more ado we give it to you:

Day of Reckoning

A GROWING terror, which he stubbornly refused to face, had been tugging at Harwood's nerves steadily during the summer and early fall months. He realised that he could not evade the issue much longer. I've got to finish my course at the Collegiate, he told himself grimly. And like a distorted echo, a voice in the distance mocked him with the sneering question, You fool where will you get the money? Why, you've only got a mere pittance in the bank! The Collegiate can't give you any more help. Pay up, or get out! Get out!

And then, one day, a glimer of hope thrilled him, when Murchison, the day editor of the News, said:

"See here, Harwood. You've been pestering me for Heaven knows how long to give you a steady job on the paper. That's practically impossible; but I tell you what I'll do. I'm a gambling man, Harwood . . . you have to be in this racket. Well, if this clumsy team of yours beats Eastern on Saturday, I'll make some kind of a job for you. If they don't you'll stay away from here once and for all. Now that's a fair chance, and it's the best I can do for you."

Thus, the day of the game, Harwood clapped his hands wildly when Collegiate completed a play and gained yards; and he jostled with the other students; and smiled serenely at Dawn, sitting beside him as at every game; and winked at anyone and everyone. But all the time his heart went pit-pat, pit-pat as though it would burst, as though it knew that Collegiate was doomed. The score-board at half time shone with the lettering, Collegiate, 9; Eastern, 7. Meanwhile, he heard the ceaseless buzz of conversation around him: "Condor is playing a great game . . . good old Condor, winning for Collegiate . . . it's a one-man team today . . ." He thought of Condor, starring on the gridiron, and at the same time excelling in academic work. Winning a scholarship from him by three marks. Condor, the wonderman. Harwood tried not to be, but was, envious. But, in spite of the despair throttling his emotion, his envy melted to genuine regret when, in the last quarter, Condor made a desperate attempt to score once more and consolidate Collegiate's chances. Coming out of the play, he picked up a pass, did some marvellous broken-field running, and bore down on the Eastern line, with only Cummings of Eastern to face. But Cummings cut in on him determinately and made a sure, deadly tackle. Condor went down, and lay writhing. A hush settled over the crowd, and Harwood gave up all hope and acknowledged to himself that luck had turned against the Collegiate.

It was not until three or four hours later that he roused himself to a thinking consciousness. He had long since left Dawn, and was wandering aimlessly through the dark, chill streets. He heard a newsboy crying: "All about the big game!", and glancing at the extended paper, read 'Eastern Stops Collegiate Threat, 11-9'. He stumbled on down the street, and into the murky gloom of a narrow intersection.

He wasted Sunday and Monday, trying endlessly to think of some means whereby he could obtain the full amount which the Bursar's Office demanded of him before Wednesday. They had refused to give him any more assistance. He had fifty dollars in the bank, and no guarantee of earning another penny. Tuesday afternoon he received a telephone call, and a strange voice said: "This is the General Hospital. There is a Miss Dawn Smith registered here. She has a rather bad case of pneumonia, and would like to see you. "In dismay he hurried to the hospital. Dawn was wan, but cheerful. His heart ached with a deep love for her. He had, he thought, never seen her as tragically beautiful. Fortunately, she was not as sick as the nurse had intimated. He sensed that she was worried about the hospital bill. She would have to write to her parents, and he knew they could not afford to send her the money. He believed she had caught cold at the game. Consequently, the next day, with a numbness paining his senses, he withdrew his fifty dollars from the bank and took it to her. She wept, and kissed him, and he glowed with an extreme happiness.

The following morning he went to the Collegiate. Having came to a decision, he resolved to make the best of his misfortune. He collected all his books, and then turned slowly towards the Office. In the corridor, he met the Dean, who, pausing, said: "Did you get my letter, Harwood?" Harwood murmured: "Yes, sir", and, choking with grief, left the building. No need to go to the Office now.

The letter from the Dean was waiting for him when he returned to the boarding house where he stayed. He fingered it casually and then opened it. It was quite curt, and said:

"Dear Mr. Harwood:

I received a letter yesterday from the Bursar's office, stating that you had not paid the instalment due on your fees. I surmise you are in financial difficulties. Due to this fact, and since Mr. Condor, having been injured Saturday and being unable to play football again this season, has decided to change his course, I am taking the somewhat irregular step of allowing you to use his scholarship, as you were in second place to him in the examinations last May.

Yours truly, etc."

Canadian Travel

Address delivered by D. Leo. Dolan, Director Canadian Travel Bureau on the occasion of the Annual Dinner of the American Hotel Association at: New Orleans, Louisiana, Wednesday night, October 10th, 1934.

Mr. President:

My first word shall be to express to you the sincere regret of Honourable Dr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, at his inability to be present here tonight, to extend to the American Hotel Association greetings from the Government of the Dominion of Canada. A serious illness, which has kept Dr. Manion in hospital for several weeks, prevents him from being with you on this occasion.

The task that confronts me, tonight, is both a delightful and delicate one. Delightful, because it gives me an opportunity to speak in this historic and romantic city of New Orleans, the capital of Louisiana. Delicate, because, for the most part, my auditors are citizens of the Republic of the United States and I must, of necessity, dwell upon the glory and grandeur of my own country, Canada, as a vacation land. I know you will be patient with me however, should I indulge in the use of superlatives; when referring to the country of my birth and my residence.

It is, perhaps, fitting that I should speak in the State of Louisiana on the subject I have chosen, namely, Reciprocity of Travel. There is no city in the United States that presents us with a greater symbol of the interchange of people between this country and mine. To this State of Louisiana came a great many of my French countrymen in the days of the expulsion of the Acadians from what is now, Nova Scotia, Land of Evangeline, immortalized by Longfellow's magnificent poem, and may I recall to you that within recent years, a return visit has been made of acadians from this State to Maritime Canada, settled and colonized by those sterling people, the French Canadians and French Acadians. I recall when a very representative delegation from your own state came into the Province of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, about a year or two ago to visit, again, the land which their forefathers helped to colonise and to develop, and to mingle, once more, with their compatriots in that portion of Canada.

We in Canada glory in the achievements of our France population and ever pay tribute to the splendid service they have rendered in the building of our country. Here in Louisiana, I have no doubt, you too, ar efully cognizant of, and deeply appreciate, the service which these decendants of old France have rendered to this State. There is nothing that indicates more forcibly the frailty of human judgment than the fact that even such renowned world figure as Napoleon sold this territory to the United States for a paltry sum of fivem illion dollars. Today, I am sure the production of this State exceeds, many thousands of times, the value which Napoleon placed upon Louisiana at the time of that historic sale. I am conscious, too, that speaking in this State I am in a center of the United States, where that old world civilization thrives and has made of this State a shining star in a significant part of this great Republic.

I am delighted, too, to speak to the Members of the American Hotel Association on the subject of Travel.

It is axiomatic to say that nothing is so broadening as the influence of travel. But I sometimes wonder if we realize, and appreciate, the great services which hotelmen are rendering for the comfort of those travel-minded people on this Continent. Candidly, I do not think it would be possible to have travel in such abundance were it not for the magnificent hotel systems which have been erected throughout the length and breadth of this country and my own.

May I say to you that the hotelmen are doing more than engaging in a commercial enterprise. To me they are conducting a civilizing service in their very desire to increase the idea of travel. They are continuing to foment that idea of travel which has stirred the minds of people since the dawn of civilization and I submit to you, sir, that this is a service as laudable as it is important, to the general economic welfare of this, or any other nation.

Canada has, within recent months, taken a very important step in the promotion and development of its tourist trade. There has been established at the Federal Capital, Ottawa, an or-

RELAY SQUAD TAKE M.A.A.A. EASILY IN ANNUAL MILE RUN

Amaron, Worrall, Sampson And Edwards, Make Fast Time

PROSPECTS of McGill's track team for the coming intercollegiate meet looked bright after the mile relay squad had defeated the Montreal A.A.A. team in a new record time for this annual M.A.A.A.-McGill event of 3.26 2-5 minutes. Run in cold, damp weather during the half-time interval of the McGill-Queen's football game, the race involved three of Canada's representatives at the British Empire Games, Les Wade, Jimmy Worrall and Jerry Sampson and the British Guinnam, Phil Edwards. The latter three together with the improved Bill Amaron comprised the McGill team.

Don Miller of the M.A.A.A. and Bill Amaron ran the first quarter mile on even terms. Amaron, who surprised in winning the 440 at the inter-faculty meet, held a slight lead over the more experienced Miller up to the final stretch. Worrall, the next McGill man made a fast pick up an dtook a short lead over Tom Lord. Lord pulled up slightly at the half way mark but Worrall had greater stamina and was able to give Sampson an eight yard lead.

Wade Catches Up

Les Wade, the best of Canadian milers, went right after Sampson and slowly cut down the margin, catching the law man as they came into the stretch. Cedric Hand, the M.A.A.A. anchor man, was thus given a small margin over Phil Edwards for the last lap. The latter, however, showed no sign of being slowed up by the cold weather and started off with a great rush overtaking Hand on the first turn and gradually extending his lead. Hands gave all he had to keeping Edwards' lead down and was out on his feet at the finish, fifteen yards behind.

Murray Triumphs Over Robertson In Tournament Finals

IN AN impressive display Robert Murray, provincial champion, and last year's finalist, gained the coveted title of McGill Tennis Champion by defeating "Rock" Robertson by a score of 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

The steady, calm Murray easily outplayed the erratic Robertson in the first two sets; beautiful placements followed by a splendid net game were more than a match for Robertson, but the third set nearly told a different tale for "Rock" showed a flash of the brilliance of which he is capable, and almost immediately Murray was faced with an adverse score of 3-4. Murray made a splendid rally and despite Robertson's brilliant playing cked out a 6-4 win.

The tennis team will be named later in the week. Eliminations are now being played. The chances for a win are bright.

McGill Golfers Triumph In Intercollegiate Tourney

Annex Rattan Trophy — Sweeping Victory Over Varsity — Bill Bush Wins Intercollegiate Singles Crown — Frank Corrigan Runner-up — Scoring Counted on Nassau System — 25-7 Actual Score — Win Doubles by 6-3 Count

McGILL'S golfers swept the slate clean in the Intercollegiate Golf Tourney held at Toronto, annexing the Rattan Trophy. The complete scores of singles and doubles play was McGill 25, Varsity 7. Bill Bush pulled a surprise win in copping the Intercollegiate singles crown from a classy field. He turned in a 78 and an 83 which is smart going on the Lambton Golf Club, besting Frank Corrigan of McGill by a single stroke, the latter turning in a 78-84 card for the 36 hole play.

J. Finlay and J. Brodie, two more Redmen, tied up for third place, stroking 81-84 and 86-79 respectively. W. Sutton, and G. Wurts of Varsity tied with F. Gohier of R. M. C. for third place turning in totals of 169, 86-83, 87-82, 84-85 respectively. H. Stevens of R. M. C. turned in a card of 89-81. R. E. Costello came in ninth with 176, and T. Calder followed him with 178.

Redmen in 6-3 Win

Saturday's play was confined to two teams of six men a side, and the Redmen scampered clear with a 6-3 victory. Scoring was counted on the Nassau system, a point each nine holes and one for the total. Stan Biggs and Bill Sutton of Varsity outscored Frank Corrigan and Tom Calder two to one in the first match, but Bill Bush and J. Finlay looked after Gordie Wurts and Ken Williams in fine fashion garnering three points for the Red cause. R. E. Costello and J. Brodie took C. Burton and George Stewart, 2-1.

The 25-7 composite score was cal-

VARSITY TROUNCES WESTERN RUGBYISTS IN ONE-SIDED PLAY

Suffer 34-1 Defeat — Gray And Isbistir Star

VARSITY wiped up the Little Stadium at London with Joe Breen's unhappy warriors, as they routed the hapless Mustangs to the tune of 34-1, running into a tie with the Tricolour shock troops for first place, with four points. It was a continual parade Mustangwards from toot to toot and do what they could, the Stevensmen could not be denied.

Coulter started the affray with a pretty field goal that had the Mustangs buffaloed. Western stored their only point with a rouge booted by Sherk, making the score 3-1. Isbistir scored the first touch on an end run. Gray converted making the count 9-1. A Mustang fumble paved the way for the next touch. Williams jumped on the stray pigskin at the Western's 16 yard line and Webber did the trick with some very neat plunging. Gray converted again raising the count to 15-1. A rouge ended the period's scoring at 16-1.

Open With Rouge

Isbistir opened scoring in the third with a rouge. A field goal off the educated toe of Gray tallied another three points. A blocked kick gave Keith an opportunity to draw blood again and he crossed the line for another major. Gray converted. A pass brought the ball to within 17 yards of the Mustang line and Gray booted another three points, 29-1.

Greco scored a touch towards the close of the fourth quarter and terminated the slaughter.

Large Turnouts At Wrestling Practices

Few Contestants in Heavier Weights Appear

More than twenty aspirants for wrestling honors greeted Frank Saxon at the first practice of the Wrestling Club held in the Montreal High School last Wednesday. Of these only Johnson and Black were on last year's team, the others being for the most part new to the game, although four or five of the newcomers have had some wrestling experience.

Two other members of last year's team, Wins Billingsley, captain of this year's B. W. & F., and "Gus Sonnenberg" Stewart, who delighted the hearts of sports columnists in Toronto last year by his "over the ropes is out" complex, were cut to "look the boys over," but have not started training yet.

Saxon Pleased

Saxon was pleased with the prospects of keen competition in the lighter weights, but finds a lack of numerical material in the heavier classes.

Tommy Southwood, who fought last year in the 118 pound class, has not yet put in an appearance but is expected to take over his dual role of playing-manager sometime this week. Tommy is a fast and clever wrestler, but was obviously lacking in condition at the intercollegiate meet in Toronto last February. With the managerial job on his hands he will probably take a keener interest in the game this year."

Many Newcomers

Of the newcomers Holmes (125), Gilmore (135), and McKenna (155), seem to be the most impressive, due to some previous experience in wrestling, but no predictions can fairly be made so early in the season.

Practices will continue to be held regularly on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at the Montreal High School gym.

McGill Ruggerites Lose To Wheelers In Hard Contest

McGILL'S English Rugby team found the M.A.A.A. rugger enthusiasts a trifle too enthusiastic for their liking as they lost out 12-3, on Saturday at the Westmount Grounds. The Redmen's disorganized play showed their lack of practice and, after a brief period of good offensive play in the first half, their forwards received little or no support from the rest of the team.

Soon after the start of the game, the McGill forwards broke away toward the M. A. A. A. goalposts, and Scott, a Red forward, climaxed his fine work with a try, which he failed to convert. The Montreal team replied with a counter-attack, and Russell made the score 3-3 with a neat try. They kept up the attack, and Boone put his team ahead with another try. The half-time whistle blew with the score 6-3 for Montreal.

Loose Play

Careless play on the part of the Redmen prevented their scoring after the interval when in favourable positions, and Finer of M.A.A.A. took advantage of a lapse in the McGill attack to dash through for another try. The Redmen did not recover from this setback before full time, and Boone again scored to make the final score four tries to one in favour of M.A.A.A.

For Montreal, Boone stood out with his two tries and good all-round play. McTaggart, Russell and Horton also proved effective scoring threats. Scott scored McGill's only try, and was the pick of the forwards. Munro and Wakefield also turned in useful efforts.

The teams:

McGill: Fullback, Wakefield; three-quarters, Angel, Coleman, Partridge, and Horwood; halves, Smith and Rabnit; forwards, Gilday (captain), Williams, Munro, Scott, Hamilton, Laing, Savage and Doffus.

M.A.A.A.: Jim Crombie, Russell (W), John Crombie, Horton and Finer; Stalker and Keeping; Russell (F), McTaggart, Boone, Hobart, Mackie, Anderson, Still and Vogan.

Referee: J. W. Shaw.

Badminton Club To Commence Activities

New Facilities Promised For Coming Season

THE McGill Badminton Club enjoyed a successful season's play last year, wielding the racquet on the M.A.A.A. courts. At the closing meeting Dave Mainwaring was elected secretary-treasurer and Harry Lead was re-elected president for the season.

The first annual meeting will be held tomorrow at 1.00 p.m. in the Reading Room of the Union. All interested in joining the club are requested to be present at the meeting. Any unable to be present are asked to leave their name with Harry Lead at Clairval 1762-J.

Open to Grads

It is emphasized that the McGill University Badminton Club is open both to graduates and undergraduates. Co-eds are invited to join.

The club expects to obtain playing facilities at one of Montreal's leading clubs at a reduced student rate, besides having the court in the Union Ballroom.

Full playing privileges have been offered the club by the St. Matthew Badminton Club for the reasonable rate of $12.00. Playing hours would be unrestricted under this arrangement. There are six courts, showers, lounge, dining room, etc. and already many students have expressed their desire of joining the club. The club has also received an offer from the Cliffside Club.

while Tom Richert was giving the lie to his much-condemned kicking ability as he matched Munro in punt after punt, easily holding his own in that department during the quarter and subsequently throughout the entire game. Queen's, surprisingly enough, pulled off two sparkling forward flips, for small gains, but dangerous nevertheless.

Rough Play

The second quarter was unmarked by any scoring, but plenty of rough play made things pretty interesting. It was in this frame that Degnan was injured. Smith and Wally Markham proved to be the most effective ground-gainers for McGill in this stanza, while Krug, Hamlin and Zvonkin shone in that capacity for the opposition. Richert again managed to neutralize the booting efforts of Munro, but the Red passing attack persisted in not functioning. Smith threw them accurately enough, but the receivers were peculiarly ineffective, Arden Hedge in particular muffing a couple by inches, while the others were smothered nearly every time by the Reeves defensive system, several of them being intercepted for heavy losses.

Early in the third quarter, after Queen's had scored a rouge, Markham recovered another fumble, on their 30, and after Johnny Riddell plunged four yards, Richert attempted a drop kick which barely went for one point, Krug being pushed out of touch about a yard behind his own line. Students of the game are today decrying the fact that Smith, who was injured at the outset of this quarter, was not rushed back into the game for a placement kick, a play at which he excells. But he was evidently too badly hurt to be of any use so soon after the injury. At any rate, there was no further scoring in the period, the count being 4-2 for McGill as the teams changed ends.

Again Start Well

Again the next quarter began auspiciously for the Redmen as Don Young intercepted a Tricolour flip, running the sphere back to the opposition's 27-yard line before the surprised Kingstonians could bring him down. A 10 yard penalty to Queen's for an offside brought the ball up to their 15 yard line, and here again dubious strategy caused the grand-stand quarterbacks to groan. After a hurried huddle, the Red forces tried a fake forward pass which was knocked down, and Queen's regained the ball on their own 25. From that point on, the game rapidly took on a Tricolour tinge, and the break which finally won the game for them came with about three minutes to play. Munro, kicking with the wind, began to attain a distinct edge over Richert, and a 15-yard penalty for lack of yard on a tackle found the Gaels in possession on the Red 15. Biffer Weir smashed through for 8 yards on the next play and then Ed Barnabe dropped back and coolly booted a drop over the bars from about 18 yards out. The desperate Redmen retaliated with a 20 yard pass from Riddell to Letourneau, and Smith was belatedly rushed into the game, but after heaving a 50-yd. pass to no avail, was smeared on the following two plays, and the whistle ended all further hope of snatching the game out of the fire.

Coach Shaughnessy takes his charges to London next week, where the cellar position will be decided once and for all, while the two league leaders play in Kingston. This tussle should be in the nature of a breather for the home forces, who ought to register first win of the season. If they do more will be heard from them later, as Queen's and Toronto found out last year when the Redmen lost the first two games on the schedule, only to come back with a subsequent rush which just failed by the proverbial eyelash to unseat the Blueboys.

Soccer Gossip

by Hat Trick

AMERICA'S Second Best Intercollegiate Soccer Team were by no means impressive Saturday Nevertheless they succeeded in eking out a 1-0 victory over a McGill Eleven who could not even be called good by the most prodigious stretch of the Imagination. Poor work around the goal area was responsible for the Red down-fall, although poor conditions might be held the real bogey man.

McGILL was unfortunate in not having a regular outfit on hand. Neither of the wing positions was ably filled and both fullbacks were unaccustomed to senior company. Of the forwards Nolan showed up best, but his shooting was highly erratic and spoiled his good work in other directions. He was in error, also, in endeavouring to cover more ground than an inside right has ever covered before. The halves did not help matters by feeding this wing to the exclusion of the other.

AMERICAN rules are a trifle rougher than those prealling on this side of the border and the visitors were called for offences which were not illegal in their eyes. Play was considerably less tough, however, than has been the case in the past when these two teams met. The undoubtedly hefty McGill half-line may have had something to do with this.

AS usual, lack of condition told heavily on the Redmen, being particularly noticeable in the last phase of the game. A considerable number of the Red seniors are imbued with the idea that they are indispensable to the squad. It would serve as a most effective eye-opener were a few of these over-confident youngsters to be replaced by some of the highly efficient substitutes in the coming intercollegiate schedule.

while if one wonts to get anything extra it is necessary to pay four or five times the ordinary price.

Despite the claims of the Soviet, there is no real religious freedom in Russia. A certain number of churches are open, but the priests are disenfranchised; people who attend religious services are in danger of losing their jobs, while young children are threatened with expulsion from the youthful organization, such as the "young pioneers" and others.

However, the Soviet have accomplished much; they had built a huge canal running from the White Sea to the Baltic Set. It was built in 18 months by 250,000 men working at forced labour. This last feature was greatly to be deplored, stated the speaker. In other ways, though, the Government is in advance of other countries. It has brought in some of the world's greatest experts to advise them in the field of medical work; it has invested millions in institutes engaged in industrial research. The government is aiming to reduce the working hours of the people and at the same time training them to employ usefully this leisure. Stadiums and recreation grounds have been built in order to make the people more interested in sports. In spite of the easy marriage and divorce laws very few people take advantage of them, showing that family life there must be pretty peaceful.

The government has the enthusiastic support of the younger generation who see in their efforts and successes a bright future; only the older people of the Czarist regime are rather discontented. There is not the slightest doubt, however, that the government is firmly in the saddle, though they will be forced to make some modifications in the future.

CO-ED CAPERS

by Maggie

Whatever their other faults may be, it cannot be said that McGill co-eds are afraid of the weather for the tennis tournament is going strong with a long list of outdoor activities still to go. The track meet is scheduled for October 26th —provided we aren't snowed under by then—at the Upper Stadium Lists will be up today both in the R. V. C. and Arts Building.

Outdoor Archery tournament — one of the highlights of our season — on October 19th in the Upper Stadium from 2 to 4 p.m. Eighteen arrows will be shot at each of thirty, forty, and fifty yards. Competition will be keen, as Cynthia Bazin, 1933 champ, and Shirley Stevenson, '34 outdoor winner, both of whom have been teaching archery this summer at camp, will be fighting it out. There will also be a number of newcomers, with and without experience, and the tournament is open to any woman student. Lists will be posted today in the Arts Building and R.V.C.

Freshettes in particular, and everyone else as well, are invited to attend the big M.W.S.A.A. meeting on Thursday, October 25, in the R. V. C. Common Room. We'll be seeing you there, we hope.

Plans for the Badminton Club are underway as well, according to Barbara Timms. But we'll be hearing more on this anon.

You'll be glad to hear that we're trying to arrange a fall swimming meet some time about the middle of November. Plans for then are indefinite as yet, but we'll keep you posted about them.

Unfortunately, Holder attempted "Because," and the Duke's Song from Rigoletto. Here, away from his natural element, his idiom of enunciation and the idiomatic quality of his tone made these songs sound "foreign," and uncomfortable to our ears.

When he came back to spirituals in his last group he sang with a beauty of expression and tone that left no room for doubt as to his ability. "Go Down Moses," "Oh Peter Go Ring-a Dem Bells," and "I Stood on De Ribber Jordan" so charmed the hearers that he had to sing two encores. He concluded with "I Gotta Home in That Rock" and the difficult Burleigh arrangement of "Sinnah, Please Don' Let That Harvest Pass."

Throughout he sang intelligently; combined with this, he never forced his voice, so that one was not too much aware of the weakness in it.

His accompanist, Hazel Holder, played three numbers on the piano; "Juba Dance" by Dett being really worthy of mention.

ganization known as the Canadian Travel Bureau. This organization is to give, I hope, effective and energetic leadership to the various agencies throughout the country that are interested in the increase of our tourist traffic.

Quite naturally we look to the United States for that increase and may I dwell, here, very briefly, on what Canada has to offer to the prospective vacationist. If a touring area is able to offer a bracing and invigorating climate, a variety of terrain, an inspiring panorama of mountain, lake and sea-shore and a section of the world hallowed in historic memories, which at the same time, is adjacent to the laarge centers of population, then surely Canada is qualified on all these counts. That may sound like a boastful description of my own country but I think there are many here, tonight, who have been in Canada and will agree with me, that what I have said with regard to my country as a vacation land has not been said with too great disregard for the truth.

Our great traffic comes from the United States and even last year we estimated the total value of our tourist traffic at $117,000,000. There was a time, in those good days prior to 1929, when we valued our tourist traffic in Canada as nigh as $309,000,000. A great percentage of that traffic came from the United States and I think you people visited us for several reasons. One particular reason, and I desire to stress it here, today, is the fact you may travel between Canada and the United States without annoyance of passport, that the interchange can be free and unencumbered, that you will find our customs and immigration officers at the border, kindly, courteous and hospitable, that you may stay within this continent and yet by visiting Canada you can journey in a country vastly different to your own.

I do not want you to think, tonight, however, that this traffic has been all one way. Even last year, when Canada showed a decrease of more than 24% in its tourist traffic from the United States, Canadian visitors to the United States showed an increase of approximately 7%. Canadian visitors spent in the United States, last year, the sum of approximately $40,000,000, and Canadians visited your country to a far greater extent, per capita of population, than the people of your country visited Canada.

As an example the figures of the Province of British Columbia, from the period April 1 to August 10th, 1934, show that more than 30,000 more Canadian cars crossed the international border into your country than United States cars entering that province.

While Canadians spent approxicately $40,000,000 visiting the United States they spent less than half that amount in visiting other foreign countries. A pretty strong indication that the trend of travel between the two countries is showing a great increase.

I shall not worry you with any more figures in this connection. May I point out to you however, that there were two historic years 1775 and 1812, when you Americans came to Canada in very great numbers. I am prepared to say, today, that the welcome we give you now will be more intense, more sincere and more wholehearted, than on the two occasions to which I have referred.

I do not want to flatter the Members of this Association. I know too many of them personally, to fall into such an unwarranted error. But, frankly, I think that the hotel-men of this continent perform a great international service in the promotion and development of the concord and good-will between the people of your country and the people of my country, and it is of this ministry of reconciliation that I want to speak to you about for just a few moments.

May I briefly refer to our history. Two of the principal racial elements in The Maritimes are the United Empire Loyalists and the French Acadians. They certainly were conscious of a dividing line.
